TELEGRAMS TO THE STAR.

A Somnambulist's Adventure, JUMPING OUT OF A SECOND-STORY WINDOW, HE IS WEDGED BETWEEN TWO BUILDINGS. r. Louis, Nov. 10.-Antone Schubert, a wellknown farmer about sixty years of age, in a fit of abulism, jumped from the second-story winsomnambulism, jumped from the second-story window of the Tiemann house, on East Main street, Belleville, about 2 o'clock yesterday morning, into the rear yard, and luckily escaped with no more injuries than a sprained ankle and a bruised arm and back. The farmer retired at 9 o'clock and all went well with him until shortly before 2 o'clock, when he dreamed his stock was suffering for the want of water. He jumped out of bed and imagining that the blankets were his overcoat, he wrapped himself in them, and, without awakening, mistook the window for the door and jumped out. Next to the hotel was a one-story building, used as a storehouse, with a narrow passage-way out. Next to the note! was a one-story building, used as a storehouse, with a narrow passage-way between the two buildings, scarcely wide enough for a child to walk through. Schubert fell through this opening to the ground, a distance of 16 feet. The fall awakened him, but he was wedged so tightly between the two build-ings that he could not extricate himself, and so doubled up that he could scarcely breath or cry doubled up that he could scarcely breath er cry out for help. A wide awake policeman heard the noise made by the fail, and, thinking he had a good catch, he appeared upon the scene with a club in one hand and a revolver in the other, ready to capture the supposed robber alive or dead. The hostier, hearing the policeman enter the yard, was awakened by the noise, and, imagining that it was a horse-thief after the valuable stock, rushed out of the barn, prepared to demoilsh the policeman. At this juncture a low moan was neard in the narrow passage-way: "For God's sake help me out; I'm dying," which came from the somnambulistic farmer, who was now wide awake. The hostier saw the policeman's star and the peeler recognized the hostier with his pitchfork. Mutual exciamations followed, the implements of war were laid aside, and a crowbar and wooden lever procured. After an hour's hard work Schabert was released from his unpleasant position, nearly frightened to death, but otherwise not seriously injured.

Marshal Carlton's Murderer Arrested. DENISON, TEX., Nov. 10 .- The negro desperade John Hogan, who so brutally murdered Deputy United States Marshal Cariton in this city last week, was captured Tuesday night at Fort Worth by officer Fullford, through the untiring efforts of Deputy Sheriff Hackney, of this city, who has been working every clue obtainable, and who, learning John had passed through this city going South, posted officers in that direction. Hogan went with posted officers in that direction. Hogan went with the above result. Five deputies left town for Fort Worth to get Hogan. Judge Peedan says he would oppose a compromise at 5 cents on the dollar, and for this reason he is opposed to obeying the writ of mandamus issued against the court. Sullivan Meets Smith.

THE FORMER DOES A LITTLE SPARKING TO PLEASE THE BRITISHERS AND MAKES A GOOD IMPRESSION. Jno. L. Sullivan made his first public appearance In London at St. James' Hall last evening. The hall was crowded to its utmost capacity. He was introduced to the spectators by Jem Smith, the English champion. In a brief speech he expressed his thanks for the reception he had met with, and said he hoped that Smith would beat Kilrain. Smith himself also made a few remarks, saying that he meant to beat Kilrain and would then do said he hoped that Smith would beat Kilrain. Smith himself also made a few remarks, saying that he meant to beat Kilrain and would then do his best to beat Sullivan. The American champion boxed with Ashton and three other leading pugilists, and, although he appeared to be slightly out of condition, his smartness pleased the critics. Smith, on being questioned as to his opinion of Sullivan's ability, said: "Sullivan is a good man, but I believe that I can beat him." Sullivan, in an interview, said that Smith was shaped well, but that he had expected to find him a bigger man. Sullivan was repeatedly applauded during the exhibition last night. Mitchell failed to meet Sullivan yesterday and arrange terms for a fight.

TRYING TO GET WILSON'S NAME LEFT OUT.—In the Caffarel trial in Paris yesterday several persons deposed that they had sent money to General d'Andiau in return for decorations. The public prosecutor, in his address, urged that the name of M. Wilson be expunged from the case, as the accusations against him had been retracted. The case now, he said, appeared to be one of simple swindle, remarkable solely on account of the rank of the persons accused. The letters from General Thibaudin, General Boulanger and M. Wilson, which were found in the prisoner's house, were only commonplace replies to questions and were devoid of importance.

Wants $130,000 INDEMNITY.—A Winnipeg special says Capt. Warren, of Victoria, B. C., is in Ottawa. Five of his vessels were seized by Americans in Behring's Sea. He has asked the government to present his claim of $130,000 for indemnity. He says the Alaska Commercial Company is at the bottom of the trouble.

Then there is the prophecy brought forward by the German people, who are somewhat superstitious. Germany is to be greatest, it says, under a young ruler who has but one arm, and has four sons. He is to succeed an aged sovereign, carry on a great war successfully, and prove another Frederick the Great. The Germans see in this the destiny of Prince William, who was born with one arm partly deformed, short and stiff. And they see in his character all the requirements of the prophecy even down to the four sons. But the power of Germany wanes after this ruler, and she is then to go down and become an insignificant nation. So runs the prophecy. EIG PANTHER KILLED IN PENNSYLVANIA—OTHER GAME PLENTIFUL.

A dispatch from Williamsport, Pa., November 8, says: A panther, 7 feet long, was killed on Saturday by Fred, and John Adams, who were deerhunting on White Deer Mountain, in the southern part of this county, near the Clinton County line. The hunters were led to the discovery of the animal by its cries, which were the first panther yells heard in this part of Pennsylvania for forty years. It was discovered stretched out at full length on the lower branch of a hemlock tree. The hunters were armed with repeating riles, and both fired at the panther. It fell to the ground, and Fred Adams' dog sprang upon it. Quick as a flash, although the panther was so badly wounded it could not stand, it seized the dog and literally tore it to pieces. Two more shots dog and iterally tore it to pieces. Two more shots killed the panther. As these animals always travel in pairs, the mate of this one is believed to be in the vicinity, and parties are hunting it. Not far from where the Adams boys killed the panther Recorder Glimore, of this city, and Wm. Heivly shot and killed a large black bear on Friday. Another party killed two deer. From the Boston Herald.

A rather novel enterprise has just been established in this city, which will interest property-owners at large and business men in particular. It is something entirely new, not only in Boston but in the entire country, and will undoubtedly but in the entire country, and will undoubtedly prove the pioneer of similar ones in many other cities. The scheme as developed is to notify property-owners in case of fire that they may be con hand to save and protect their possesions. For instance, a building on Summer street is discovered to be on fire at midnight. The owner or occupant, of course, is unaware of that fact, and is probably sound asleep at his home in the Back Bay. There may be books, papers and articles of small bulk not in the safe which are quite valuable. Were the owner present he might be able to save them or direct the firemen so that they could do it. Even if this should not be the case, a property-owner could personally supervise the protection of goods not destroyed, and certainly he would be interested enough to wish to be present. If he happens to be a subscriber to the scheme he is at once notified of the fire by messengers or telephone by the agent of the company, whose business it is to attend all fires. Should the owner live within the city limits a carriage is sent for him, and he is brought to the fire ly messengers or telephone by the agent of the company, whose business it is to attend all fires. Should the owner live within the city limits a carriage is sent for him, and he is brought to the fire is hunted up and notified in case of fire as soon as possible.

remark to the late Gen. Fleury, "When there is any question of our going to war it is hard work to convince our good sovereign; he always thinks first of his relatives." But the Emperor Alexander III never really abandoned the strong anti-German proclivities which he openly professed before he ascended the throne. It is well known that during the Russo-Turkish war he insisted that any member of his staff caught talking German should be leaded to pay a heavy fine, which went to the wounded relief fund. It came to the ears of his father, who seized an early opportunity of visiting the quarters of the czarevitch, and addressed each individual member of his suite in German. They were obliged to answer in the same language, and afterward compelled to pay the fine. From the day the reigning czar succeeded his lather the hope was kindled in every Frenchman's breast that a Franco-Russian alliance would be brought about. Circumstances, however, forced Russia to reckon with Germany, which she did with more or less good grace as long as Germany did not thwart her Eastern policy. But the moment has come when Germany can make no further concession to Russia without infringing the interests of her allies, Austria and Italy, and the consequence has been that the hydra of Panslavism has been let loose again unchecked by a reproving word from the czar. An interview would, therefore, be unpleasant for both of the august parties concerned, though the fact of its not taking place is decidedly not of good omen for the maintenance of peace. The Novoe Vremya writes thus: "The West European press is singing victory over Russia, which it represents as completely isolated and incapable of carrying out its aims in Bulgaria. Events are approaching that will give this the lie. Instead of talking so much about the new triple alliance being the safest means of issolating Russia, it would be better to wait and see what measures the cabinet of St. Petersburg is going to take in view of neutralizing the effects of the said alliance."

A log pile was built upon the side of the public road, and the negroes were chained each between two heavy logs. Then the four logs were chained together, so that the wildest contortions of the wretcaes could not shake them. A fire was kindled, which soon blazed up and enveloped the bodies of the victims. Their cries were most pitiful as the flames burned into their flesh. The cries grew fainter, the fire cooled down, and only ashes were left to tell the horrible story.
